Robert Barr is the Executive Director of the Berkeley Center for Law and Technology (BCLT) and Lecturer-in-Residence at the University of California Berkeley School Of Law. Prior to joining BCLT in 2005, he was the first Vice President of Intellectual Property Cisco Systems in San Jose, California, where he was responsible for all of the company's patent prosecution, licensing, and litigation. He started Cisco's patent program in 1994 and built a portfolio of over 2000 issued patents and over 3000 pending patents.

Robert has degrees in Electrical Engineering and Political Science from MIT and a JD cum laude from Boston University School of Law. He was an Adjunct Professor of Patent Law at Hastings College of Law from 1994-1999.

Robert has been a prominent patent attorney in Silicon Valley for over 20 years. He started his patent practice at the law firm of Townsend and Townsend. He has also been a partner at Brobeck, Phleger and Harrison and Weil, Gotshal and Manges, where he specialized in patent strategy counseling for clients in the computer, telecommunications, and semiconductor industries. He is currently of Counsel to the law firm of Gunderson, Dettmer, Stough Villeneuve Franklin & Hachigian, LLP

The Daily Journal named him one of the top 25 intellectual property attorneys in California (2003) and one of the top 10 in-house intellectual property lawyers in California (2004).
